Wagon Making and Blacksmithing!

Z. BARNARD,

TAKES this method to return his thanks to his friends for the liberal patronage which they have extended to him, thus far, and as he has just completed several important improvements in his already extensive establishment, he hopes to gain a still more extensive and profitable patronage from his friends and the community in making Wagons and Buggies.

He flatters himself that he can just now establish himself in the country, for men and women of modest workmanship. He employs none but the very best mechanics, and warrants the woodwork, ironing, and painting, of his wagons and buggies to be unequalled by any in the land in the states. All kinds of Wagons and Buggies.

Done in a superior manner, and with despatch.

HORSE SHOING.

which he had abstained for a while, has been recommended. Having employed an excellent shoer, he juives those of his animals who have bones to shoe, to bring them along; for he knows he can easily satisfy the hardest to please.

His Materials is the best quality. Hence no wood in his wagons and buggies is thoroughly scoured, and none but the best iron.

In all his work his prices will correspond with the times, and with his present friends he feels confident that he can do his work honest, better, and faster, and at prices as low as can be done by any firm or individual in the west. Give him a call and try him for yourself.

GT. CASH paid for seasoned wood for spokes and axles. Ottawa, April 27, 1850-39-40.

Horse Shoeing and Farriery.

THE subscriber begs leave to announce to the public that he has opened an establishment in Columbus street, near the Catholic Church, where the business of shoeing and farriery will be conducted on the principles of art.

It is generally admitted that too many of the persons who practice shoeing are totally ignorant of the principles of the art, and of the numerous cases of contraction, & diseases of the feet daily witnessed. It really becomes the duty of every one who values a good horse, so essential to his profit as well as his pleasure, to secure the services of a good farrier for so useful an animal.
